1001 Buildings You Must See Before You Die (2nd Edition) By Mark Irving

In this book, some buildings are built with marbles, stones, steel and concrete, and the other are built with wood, bark and bamboo. "Architecture" is a cryptic term, but building is not, and although its influence is in a world where space and resources are on the decrease while human demand is ever-increasing. This book includes some notorious buildings, because the building itself does not ensure public interest or historical importance. This book is an exciting visual journey, showing the remarkable innovation ability of architects, engineers and constructors around the world, and meanwhile providing detailed information about construction tools and implementation method.
