Sierra Trout Guide By Ralph Cutter

Rear cover notes: "On their honeymoon in 1976 Ralph and Lisa Cutter backpacked from Mexico to the northern Sierra border. During their nine month walk they swept back and forth across the Sierra, hiking nearly every pass and fishing many of the waters. Since that time they have learned much more and you will be fascinated at the information they reveal about Sierra trout and the hundreds of streams and lakes in which they are found. The directory alone includes trout information about 500-plus streams and 1700 lakes! Learn about the different species of trout, what they eat and where they live. Information about hatches, fly fishing equipment and successful techniques. Backcountry ethics are stressed. the sierras are a wonderfully different experience. Enjoy and understand them even better with Ralph Cutter's Sierra Trout Guide!"

Editorial Review

Amazon.com Review

More than just a guide to finding trout in the diverse waters of California's Sierra Nevadas, this is a colorful and informative overview of the fish, their habitat, and techniques for bringing them to net. It begins with a detailed description of the native and non-native trout species of the Sierras, including beautiful full-color plates. Subsequent chapters include discussions of hydraulics, trout behavior, entomology, locating fish, and traveling in the backcountry. Anyone who fishes--or plans to fish in the Sierra Nevadas--should read this book from start to finish.
